Eradicating extreme poverty for all people everywhere by 2030 is a pivotal goal of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development. More than 800 million people in India are considered poor. Most of them live in the countryside and keep afloat with odd jobs. The lack of employment which provides a livable wage in rural areas is driving many Indians into rapidly growing metropolitan areas such as Bombay, Delhi, Bangalore or Calcutta. There, most of them expect a life of poverty and despair in the mega-slums, made up of millions of corrugated ironworks, without sufficient drinking water supply, without garbage disposal and in many cases without electricity. Poor hygiene conditions are the cause of diseases such as cholera, typhus and dysentery, in which especially children suffer and die.

Poverty is described as a state in which an individual or family does not have enough money to meet fundamental needs. Poor individuals lack appropriate money; they cannot afford housing, health care, education, all of which are necessary for basic survival. Poverty can thus be defined as a lack of money or, more broadly, as impediments to daily human living.

In the picture, we can understand that they lack basic necessities by seeing their clothes, and faces.

The main causes are unemployment, illiteracy, population growth, and lack of sufficient education and training. People are unable to earn a living because they are unable to find jobs for themselves. As a result, they do not have access to basic education, health care, safe drinking water, or sanitation due to which they start earning by doing work on construction sites, or working in other houses. Etc. Because they are unable to feed their children and families. To feed their children and keep family happy, they have to take up different roles. Even small children take up work to support their family in financial condition.

QUALITY EDUGATION

What is the most powerful tool which has the potential to alter and make changes in the entire process of a nation? Which can create maximum impact to maximum people? Its education, the tool which can alter the thought process millions of without any bloodshed. We always underestimate the power that education posses, the power of information where one understands that they can do more things is a game changing tool between winners and losers because information gives the us agency to strive for our dreams to achieve it which is nothing short of a miracle experience.

"Education is the most powerful weapon which you can use to change the world."

Nelson Mandela

A good education is both a human right and a public good. Governments and other public authorities should ensure that a high-quality education is free for all citizens, from infancy to adulthood. The school is very committed to provide education for the students. The school is very innovative and exciting, providing all students with a wide range of opportunities and courses. An exceptional school that encourages academic excellence and encourages all students to reach their full potential. It is a very successful school with a long history of academic excellence. The basis for societal equity is high-quality education. Education allows a person to be self-sufficient and earn money in a variety of ways. The outside world requires a degree in addition to practical experience.

Without an education, it is impossible to land a good job or to be in a position where one can do something creative and earn a living. Quality education allows people to develop all of their characteristics and skills in order to reach their full potential as human beings and members of society. One of the most fundamental public services is high-quality education.

GENDER EQUALITY

When all genders enjoy an equal set of rights, responsibilities, and opportunities, it is gender equality. Gender inequality has an impact on men, women, transgender and genderqueer individuals, kids, families, and children. It affects people of all ages and socio-economic groups.

The goal for sustainable development 5 talks about empowering everyone and achieving gender equality. In addition to being a fundamental human right, gender equality is also a necessity for a world that is stable, successful, and sustainable. Over the past few decades, there has been development.

Only when men and women are given equal opportunity can a country advance and see higher development growth. We should be aware of the difficulties that persons of various gender identities face and work to advance equality for all.

INNOVATION AND INFRASTRUCTURE

In India, potholed roads are becoming practically unavoidable. In fact, drivers' instinct to swerve through lanes to avoid potholes has become second nature, which alarms surrounding vehicles as well. Naturally, widespread corruption and blatantly substandard road construction are major contributors to this. Although a sizable amount of money is given for roads each year, it often seems like no road in the nation can last longer than six months. Fair enough, not every road in India has craters and potholes. Both good and bad roads exist, however the ratio favours the latter. The majority of the time, poor foundations cause roads to crumble. And it is the aggregates that the asphalt is supported upon. Aggregates are often completely ignored or used insufficiently during construction because of the speed of the process. The top layer degrades more quickly as a result, and when water stagnates, corrosion occurs even more swiftly. India has the second-largest road network in the world, and it is rapidly increasing its highway system. As a result, there appears to have been a decline in quality as opposed to quantity,

Sustainable Cities and Communities

SDG 1

Credits: Joicy Olvita Pinto

Sustainable cities, also referred to as "eco" cities, are urban areas created with the least amount of negative impact on environment in mind. The economic. social. cultural. and environmental well-being of the present and future generations are all part of a sustainable city. It is important to transform the way we build and manage our urban spaces. It is not only improving the planning of the cities but there are several factors which are included in it. I believe building a sustainable community requires time and effort not only from higher authorities but the people who live within the society must equally contribute. A sustainable community can be built by empowering the women and encouraging their participation in the social, economic and political life of a city unemployment has been a major concern in most cities as many people graduate every year from universities and the jobs available are less.

We can see a lot of people shifting to cities as the push factors force them out of rural areas and pull factors give them hope of finding jobs and having a better standard of living. Sustainable communities diverse are inclusive. They integrate all aspects of society and all social classes including the weak and vulnerable into their services, markets, and progress. They can continue to remain productive local and create employment opportunities. Having green environment makes outer space peaceful and calm. Many people have started adopting the method of green building which is environmentallyconscious construction where they not only protect valuable natural resources but also raise the standard of living.

PATH OF LIFE

By Angela elizabeth biju

We must choose a path in life throughout our lives. This is the most difficult decision we can make because it determines our future, and making the wrong one can lead to poverty or sadness for the rest of our lives. At the end of the twentieth century, humanity is participating in an unprecedented experiment. Men are evolving medical experiments.

at more urban species. Cities are ir becoming our primary habitat.

Cities will determine man's fate in the early twenty-first century. The nature of the biosphere will be determined by the functioning of the first-century cities. Without sustainable cities, there will be no sustainable world. Humanity is conducting unprecedented experiments at the end of the twentieth century. It seems impossible for us to make a world of cities viable, environmentally, socially, and economically. The earth is unlikely to accommodate an urbanized humanity that routinely draws resources from distant hinterlands or routinely uses the biosphere. An answer to the question of whether cities can transform themselves into self-regulating systems is critical to the future well-being of humanity.

INFRASTRUCTURE – THE HEART OF EVERY CITY

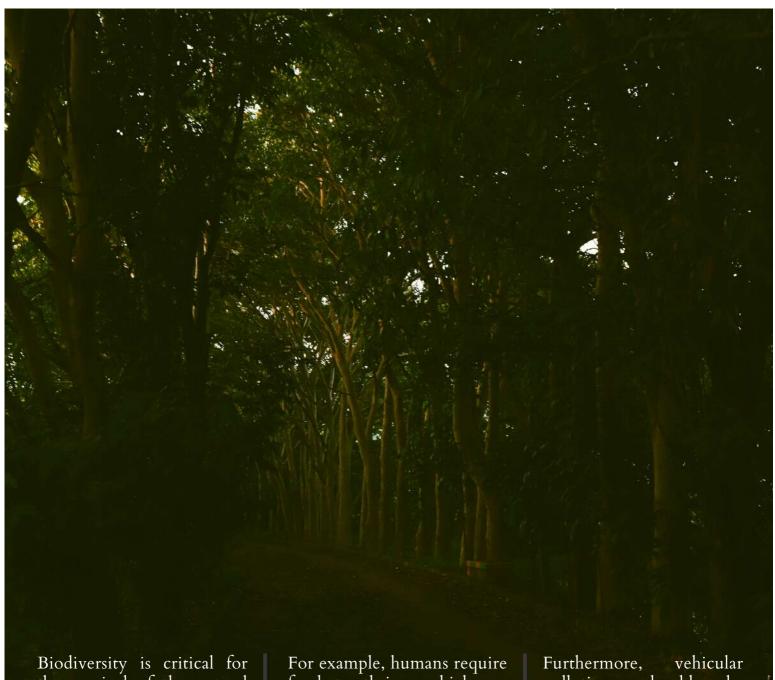

A country, city, or other area's infrastructure is the collection of facilities and systems that provides the services and facilities required for the operation of its economy, households, and businesses. Public and private physical structures including highways, railroads, bridges, tunnels, water supplies, sewage systems, electrical grids, and telephones are all considered to be part of the infrastructure (including Internet connectivity and broadband access). General definitions of infrastructure include "the physical components of interconnected systems delivering commodities and services required to enable, sustain, or enhance societal living conditions" and "the maintenance of the physical environment."

LIFE ON LAND

HARISH KUMAR S.

Biodiversity is critical for the survival of the natural system. Most noticeably, many plant and animal species are mutually dependent.

As a result, if one of them becomes extinct, the others will become endangered as well. It is also vital for people because our life is dependent on plants and animals.

For example, humans require food to thrive, which we obtain from plants. We cannot cultivate crops if the planet does not provide us with a good climate. As a result, we will no longer be able to survive on this planet. We must use a variety of interventions to halt the decline in species endangerment.

Furthermore, vehicular pollution should be reduced. So that animals may breathe fresh air. Furthermore, it will reduce global warming, which is a key to species extinction.

SDG 11

ON THE STREET

18 life on earth better than lifeless

As the quote says, if you want to see the rainbow, you have to put up with the rain. So is life on earth which must be sustained as its importance can drive us to better understand humans. Life is either an adventure or a spirit that lets us live with betterment. So, we understand the benefits of where anything that has a life can help develop us. The more we look into our lives the more we understand there's a lot to cherish.

THE BUCKET LIST

By Joicy Olvita Pinto

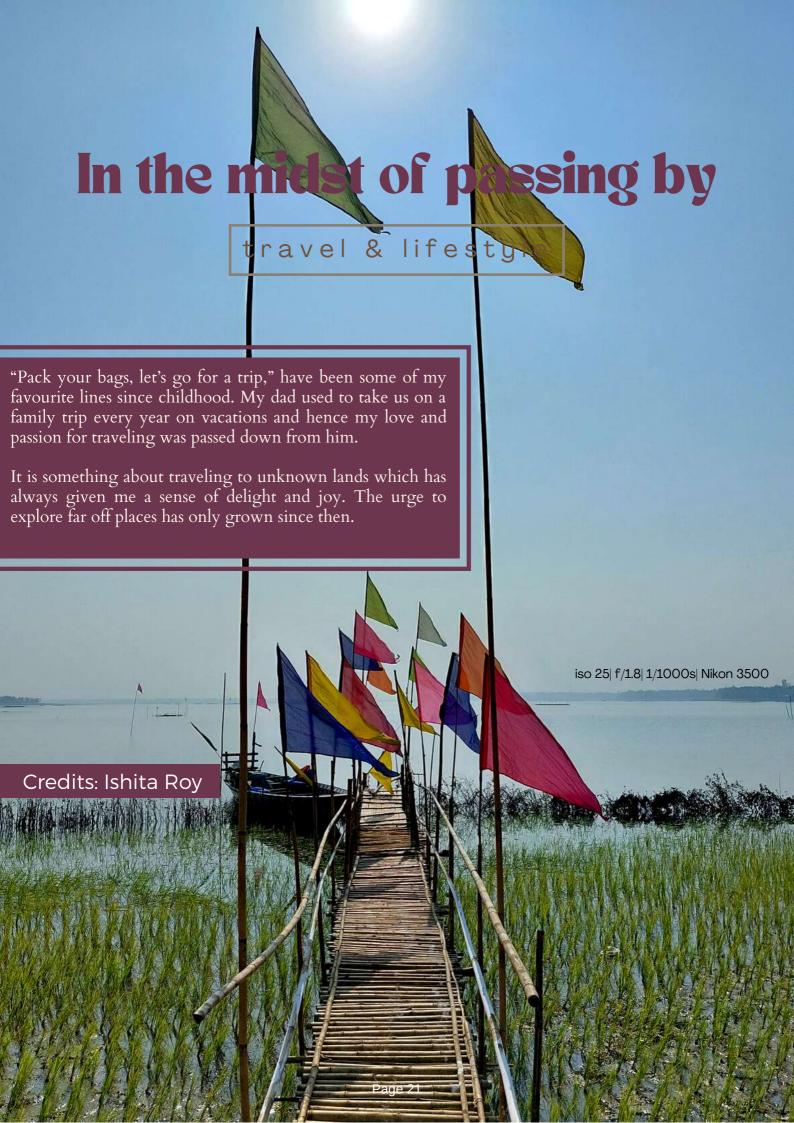

I feel travelling is an amazing way to learn new things. It is an opportunity to explore new things and at the same time feel at peace. The port city of Honnavar is not too distant from Goa's southernmost point and the naval base at Karwar. My friends and I chose to travel there because we wanted to see the beauty for ourselves.

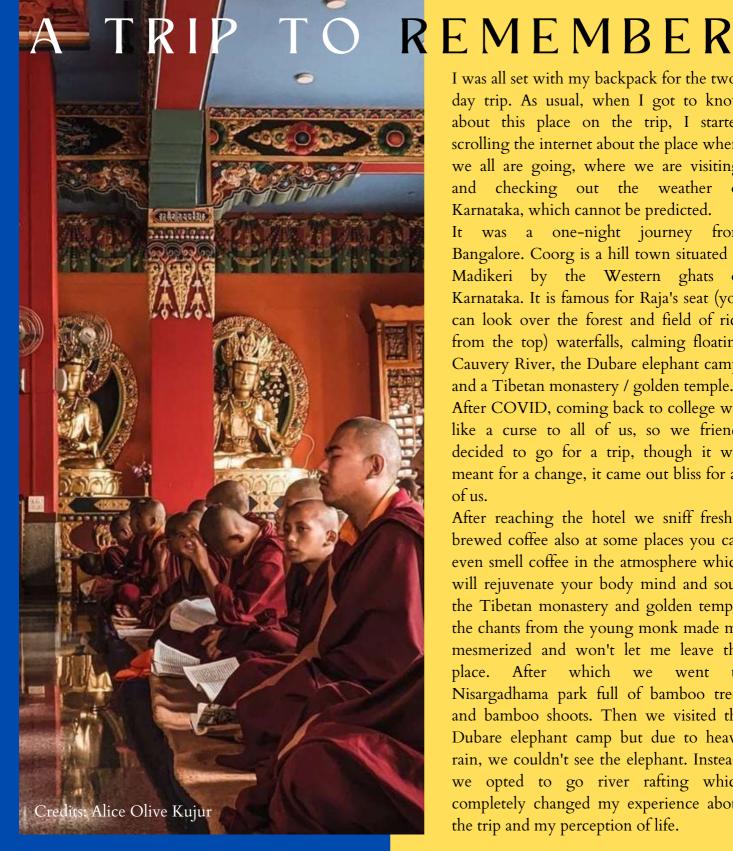

The view was beyond my expectation and was completely indulged in the thought of how there are so many things one has to experience in the world far beyond those four walls of our house. On these seas, a different kind of life is taking place that is at once relaxed, lazy, and incredibly appealing.

I was all set with my backpack for the twoday trip. As usual, when I got to know about this place on the trip, I started scrolling the internet about the place where we all are going, where we are visiting, and checking out the weather Karnataka, which cannot be predicted.

was a one-night journey from Bangalore. Coorg is a hill town situated at Madikeri by the Western ghats of Karnataka. It is famous for Raja's seat (you can look over the forest and field of rice from the top) waterfalls, calming floating Cauvery River, the Dubare elephant camp, and a Tibetan monastery / golden temple.

After COVID, coming back to college was like a curse to all of us, so we friends decided to go for a trip, though it was meant for a change, it came out bliss for all of us.

After reaching the hotel we sniff freshly brewed coffee also at some places you can even smell coffee in the atmosphere which will rejuvenate your body mind and soul, the Tibetan monastery and golden temple the chants from the young monk made me mesmerized and won't let me leave the After which we went place. Nisargadhama park full of bamboo trees and bamboo shoots. Then we visited the Dubare elephant camp but due to heavy rain, we couldn't see the elephant. Instead, we opted to go river rafting which completely changed my experience about the trip and my perception of life.

Bon Voyage

BY CHAYANIKA SARMA

I have travelled to almost every part of the country and one place never leaves my mind. Goa is one of the best places and tourist destination of the country. It has been successful in catering to its enormous crowd of tourists by giving them a taste of both Western and Indian culture. One of the best beaches in Goa is the Paradise Beach. One cannot leave the beach until they have played at least one game at the beach, laid down on the warm sand under the sun, had some delicacies prepared by the locals and in short had their best times of their lives. Travelling back to the Bengaluru, a visit to the ISKCON temple is mandatory for every traveller. Karnataka is filled with places to explore and visit but Mysore, the city of kings and places cannot be missed. One has to visit the Mysore Palace when arrived at Bengaluru even for a day or two.

LIFE AS A TRAVEL TO CREATE MEMORIES

Adharsh K.

It says life is a journey and what we see and take in is what builds us. In that journey, another way of travel happens which opens our horizon of thoughts, provides more clarity to travel and comes across a full circle of life. Each travel at every point in time will teach you something which adds up to our oeuvre of experience. The places we visited, the people we met on that journey, the laughs we had, the struggles that we went through everything is an important part of the overall story. Each place will teach you something and those lessons are hard to forget because they are physical experiences, we were there at the moment when the magic happened.

I have been on journeys where I accompanied people with me who are closer to me and more than the learning it's the memories that made the trip more precious. On my worst days, I get back to those magical moments of memories and with a teary eye, I try to make peace with the fact that those moments will never come back. Every time I revisit those memories I am that unadulterated child who was unknowingly gathering memories that will never lose their youthfulness and all stay as young as it was.

The Party Capital of India

With its diverse nature and wholesome and adventurous energy, my trip to Goa was an extremely elevating experience. This was my first trip to Goa, and it had been something I had been looking forward to for quite some time. Goa, a popular tourist destination around the world, shines in its rich diversity of people and experiences.

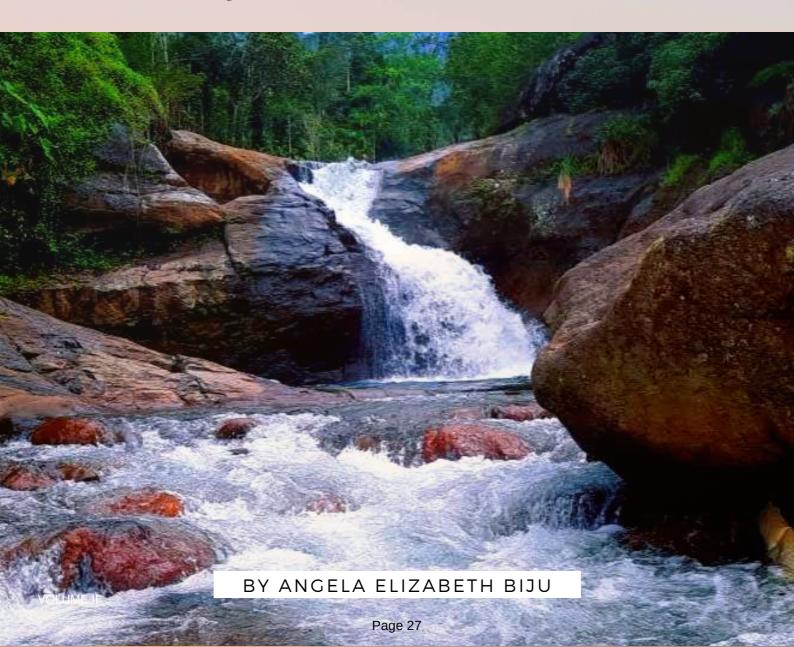

The state of Goa spans 3702 square kilometres. Maharashtra borders Karnataka to the north and east and south, respectively. The Arabian Sea borders the west coast. The coastline stretches for 101 kilometres and is home to numerous beautiful beaches. Goa's economy is based primarily on tourism, fishing, and mining.

Wayanad: The Green Paradise

The Wayanad region has a variety of crops, including coffee and spice farms. Wayanad has cool, ethereal, and spiritual evenings. In fact, I believe it is accurate to refer to Wayanad as a paradise for nature lovers. The community tourism duty is what I find intriguing about Wayanad, in addition to its breath-taking beauty and lush atmosphere. Building infrastructure to preserve the plants and environment has been a regional effort.

Wayanad offers its tourists a traditional fusion of aesthetics and environment on a plate. It should go without saying that Wayanad is more than a place to visit; it is a paradise in Kerala, the land of God. Its layout provides you a variety of experiences, including outdoor activities, camping, ayurveda, farming, nature, and opulent accomodations. No matter where you stay in Wayanad, nature will make sure to keep an eye on you. So go ahead and spend your vacation in cool Wayanad.

Kuwait is the feeling of familiarity, warmth, and home to me. While people around me speak about the land of cultures - India with so much fondness and love for their home, Kuwait is the place that I see in such a light. The place I breathed my first, cried for the first time, felt pure happiness, found warmth, and found family. Kuwait, despite being a desert country was a place where I was taught, learned, unlearned, and relearned. Home to me was, is, and will always be Kuwait.

MALENADU

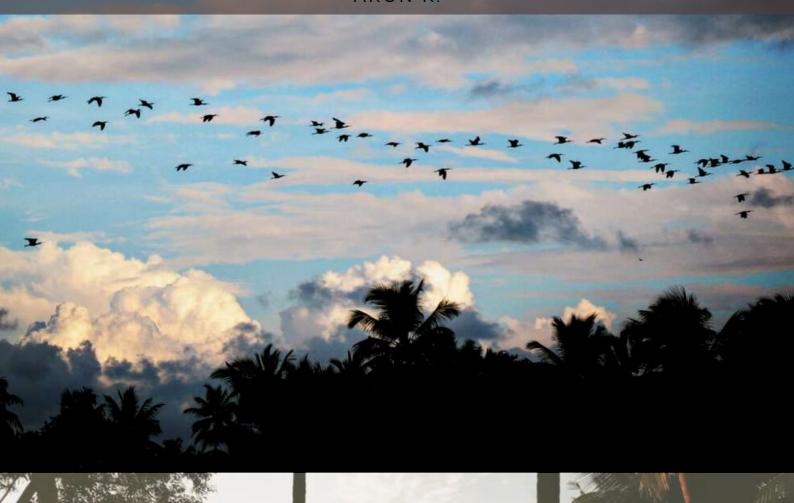

Sakleshpur is a small town in the Indian State of Karnataka. It is also known as Hill Station and is a tourist attraction that is covered by Slopes, Coffee, Cardamom, and spices. Major cities such as Bangalore and Mangalore are accessible. Sakleshpur has been designated as one of the world's 24 biodiversity hotspots. It receives the most rainfall in Karnataka. It is one of the mustsee destinations in Karnataka in August. The subtropical climate and torrential rains produce an ecosystem in which various distinct plant and animal species thrive. Biking through offbeat trails and narrow roads through coffee plantations is an experience not to be missed.

Sakleshpur is known for its beauty within itself "it is the town filled with greenery everywhere" which is pleasing to one's eyes. The climate is always Foggy, Cold, and Rainy. It is also known as Malenadu/Malnad as there is always rain. Sakleshpur is a beautiful paradise that makes one's mind fresh and happy.

HOGENAKKA L FALLS

IN SOUTH INDIA

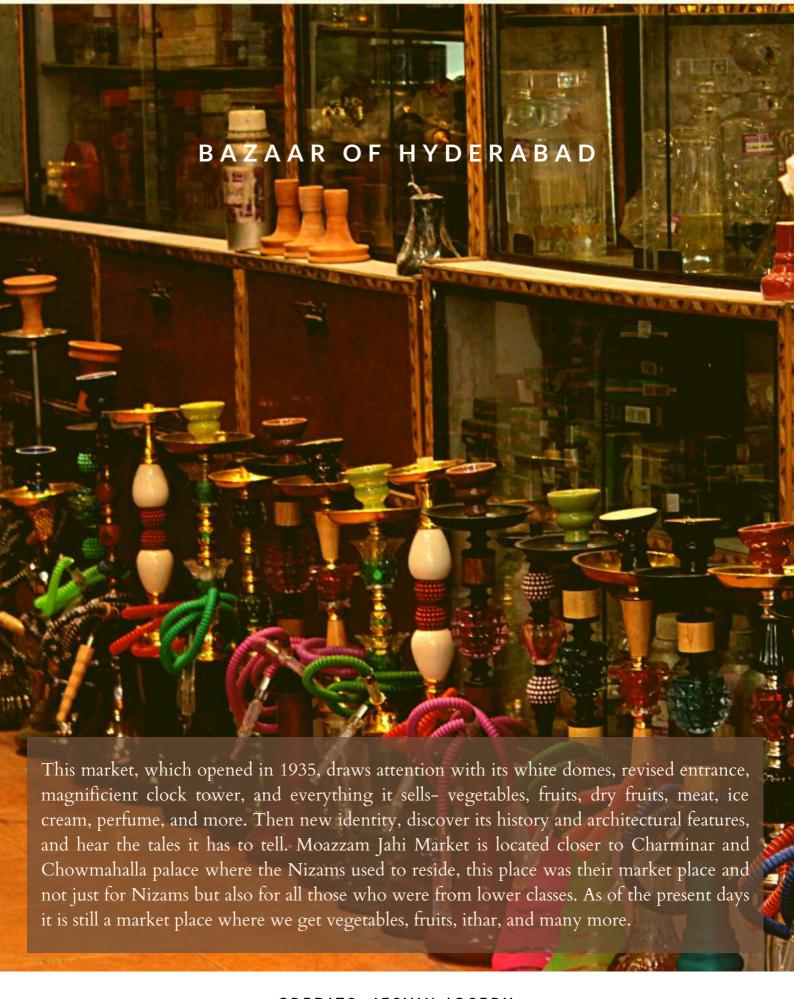

By HARISH KUMAR S.

If sitting by a waterfall and listening to its soothing sound appeals to your senses, Hogenakkal Falls in Tamil Nadu is an important site that will surprise you with its undeniable beauty. This glittering waterfall is located in the Dharmapuri region, some 47 kilometers from the city center. Hogenakkal Falls, rightly called the geographical marvel of Tamil Nadu, arises from the numerous tributaries of the Kaveri River that drop from 15 to 65 feet in height. Because the river Kaveri is permanent, this fascinating waterfall may be viewed all year. However, the best time to visit Hogenakkal Falls is between October and February, when the weather is pleasant and ideal for taking in the stunning views of this popular tourist destination in Tamil Nadu.

The remarkable arrangement of carbonatite rocks and 14 dazzling streams cascading from highs and lows create a striking sight worth remembering. Hogenakkal Falls, often known as the Niagara of India, is one of the top sites to visit in Tamil Nadu. The serene setting and nice emotions make it a great destination for nature enthusiasts, peace seekers, and vacationers alike. This breathtaking waterfall will make you fall in love with it. So don't forget to add it to your wishlist!

2ND INNINGS

I can't remember a single stage of my life without my grandmother. The photos in our shared bedroom, which show her feeding my toothless mouth when I was a child, reflect our close bond. She may appear old, fat, or short, but she is still stunning.

The number of decades she's survived in this harsh world has filled her with so many memories that even after spending all twenty-three years with me, she still has new stories to tell; several that she treasures, and some that are indirectly meant to advise me as teaching lessons. These memories frequently involve her beloved husband, a grandfather I'd never met in person but had always known by character and spirit.

ISO 250| f/4.0| 1/250s| NIKON D7200

That was due to the vivid portrait of his personality that my grandmother painted in my mind with her lively, meticulous recollections of him. And sometimes, in the most thoughtful silence, she would reminisce those memories that are closest to her heart, often ending up weeping by the end of her narration.

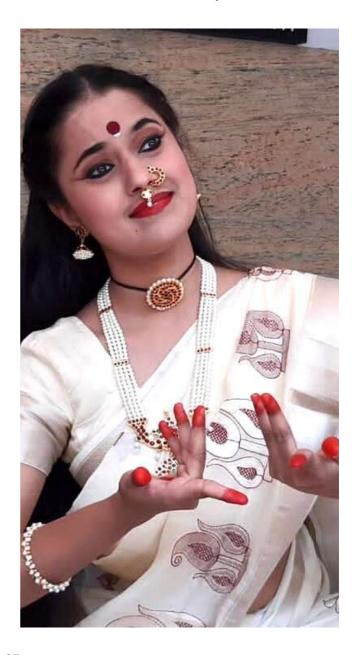

EVOKE ONE'S PERSONALITY

This type of photo is taken to capture the natural emotion and personality, the attitude of the subject. Portrait photos can be taken in studio settings or outside the studio. Portrait photography conveys one's emotion.

I have taken the picture of the dancer i.e. classical dancer portrait, the images capture the varied expressions and emotions in one picture is trying to convey a meaning. In portrait photos always the expressions of the facial part are captured rather than hands and feet It focuses on facial expression rather than other elements. Lightning is also an important element for portrait photography due the proper light image will be more clear and appear good to the viewers.

This photography style is all about attempting to convey a person's personality, identity, soul, and emotions through the use of backdrop ambience, poses, and lighting.

Gowda Tanuja Ganesh

"Faces" can be many, familiar, unfamiliar, pretty, wrinkly etc. Each face carries their own unique styles and features. Some carry the wrinkles of wisdom, while others flaunt the dimples of youthfulness.

Faces and their expressions could be a way to describe a person. Though faces don't always tell the truth, a genuine smile could most definitely make someone's day better.

Flamboyant Faces

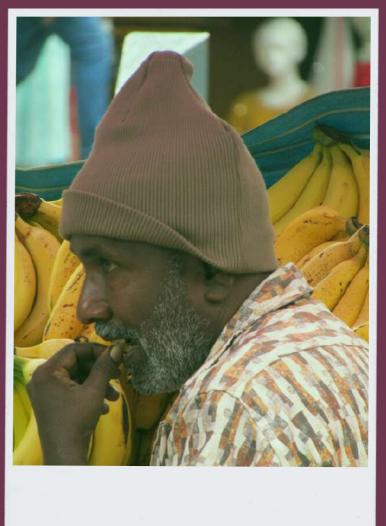

An image is that magical material thing that can replicate a moment as real as a human eye sees it. And nowadays people are trying to capture things which they see around with the camera itself rather than actually seeing it with the naked eye. But we cannot say what the camera captures is the truth, they also will have slight distortion which hides the reality. In that thought, the kind of image that captures the absolute truth is the portrait. A subject when they directly look at the camera irrespective of whether it is a man, woman, child, older person, or even animal brings a certain kind of honesty and truth. No human face is perfect and each of them has slight imperfections which make it unique. Capturing those imperfections with at most sincerity without diluting them with any external element can narrate a story with impact. For example, wrinkles on one's face show his whole journey in a nutshell and the gamut of experience that he collected over the years. A deep look into each of the elements makes it poignant. More details take it more toward purity. The texture, color of the skin, shape, and size of each part of the face just keep adding layers of beauty.

Getting Lost In Thoughts

The term "life" has numerous meanings and connotations. Saw this man sitting beside the streets, selling fruits. My eyes caught his attention as he was constantly trying to look over something and almost felt like he was lost in his own world of thoughts. One thing that struck to me when I noticed this man was that we all often get lost in our own thoughts. In a split second we do land in a different world leaving the one we are present in. These thoughts are an escape for an individual to leave all their troubles aside for a second and enjoy their dream land at that moment where everything seems perfect.

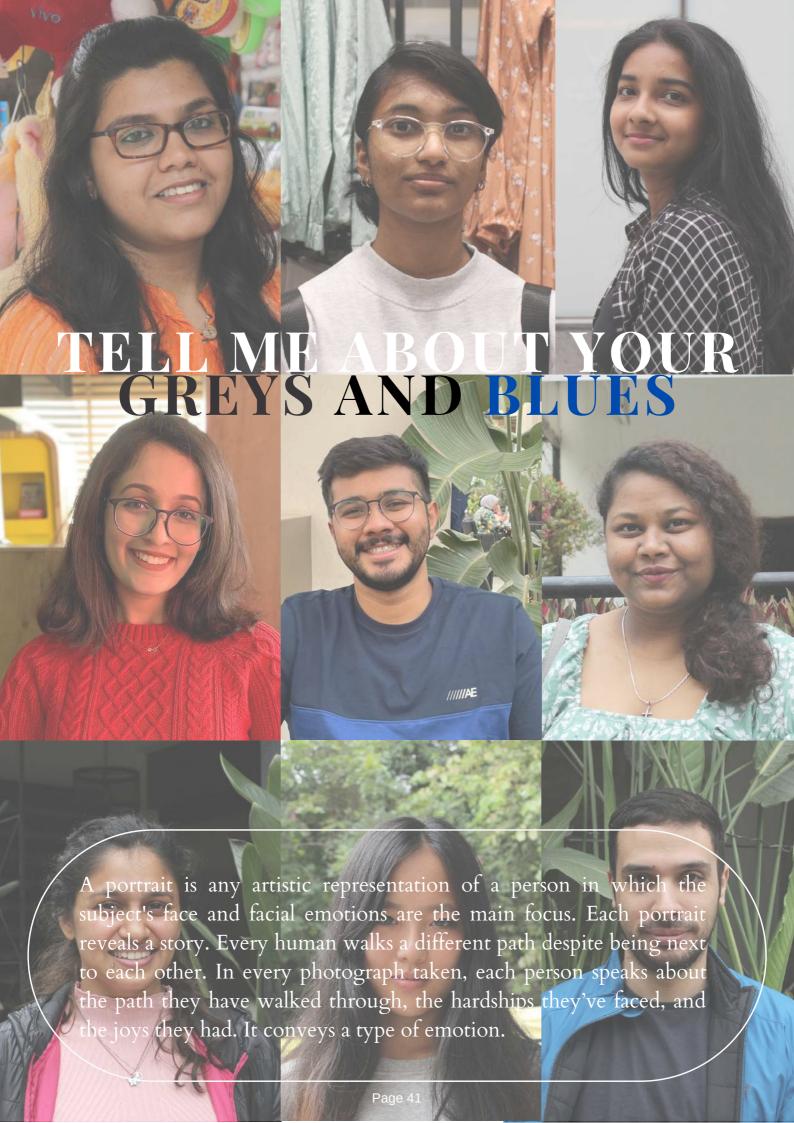

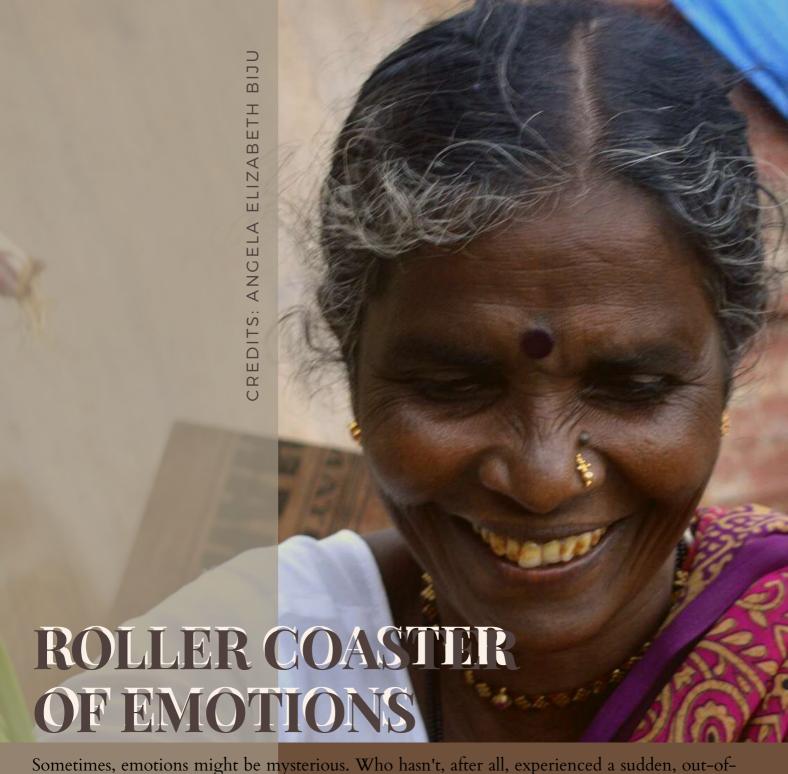

ISO 400 | f 5.6 | 1/50 s | Canon Sx430 IS

I can't really say that I don't occasionally get lost. But you must not allow your virtual life to overpower your chapter in real life. People are so loft in their thoughts these days that they forget to see what the nature around has for them. One has forgot how to enjoy the surroundings around them as the invention of mobile phone are to be blamed for. The automatism of mind has made us feel lethargic to even think of what we are doing at that point of time. Thus, one should know to control their perceptions, thoughts, attitudes, feelings, emotions and perspectives to manifest the reality.

Credits: Joicy Olvita Pinto

Sometimes, emotions might be mysterious. Who hasn't, after all, experienced a sudden, out-of-control wrath or a depressing feeling for no apparent reason? People frequently categorise emotions as "good" or "bad" based on whether they are pleasant or unpleasant: Joy is good, while rage is evil. However, a lot of emotion researchers think that emotions, whether they are pleasant or unpleasant, are beneficial and adaptive, giving us essential information about the world around us. In other words, even negative emotions have a positive side. People strive to attain happiness, yet different people have different definitions of what it is. The majority of individuals often refer to their current mood or a broader sense of how they feel about life in general when they discuss what happiness really is.

I COULD SEE A PHASE IN YOUR EYES

CREDITS: ARUN K.

ISO 800 | f/5.6 | 1/100 | Canon 3000D

As we know how the tongue hides the truth but our eyes never lie, we can see an entire phase of a person by just looking at their eyes. We know their struggles, their hard work, and their emotions just by a glance. We all have phases and attributes that we try to hide but once we realize the main purpose of our existence we tend to implement it even more.

FACES OF EVERYDAY

Faces are insignificant. Faces are units of indifference. Faces are vague. Many will not agree with me on this, but to me faces do not hold a special place but the person behind it does. The human mind is a funny thing and always full of bizarre unexplainable thoughts. It scans through everyday lives of each person. It is not capable of remembering every face while a person travels continuously. But when I rest my mind and attend to my slumber at night, I tend to get visions of the day and glimpses of people I have met and conversed throughout the day. And to my surprise, certain unknown faces lock in my mind. Their significance is none in my life, but they still get locked in my unconscious irrespective of their role. Faces are insignificant, but the mind makes them special.

Animals, like humans, have their own traits and characteristics that set them apart. Some have big noses and ears; some have long tongues. Some are very hairy, while others have velvety soft bodies. Like human portraits, a good portrait of an animal highlights these unique characteristics and gives us a glimpse of its nature. You may be able to train a dog or cat, but you can't ask a wild animal to pose and say "cheese." Animals that are accustomed to the presence of humans may exhibit blank facial expressions or strange reactions when talking or gesturing. But for animals you can't get close to, you have no choice but to wait until the pose is decided. Understanding and anticipating his behavior is one of his ways of simplifying things. But other than that, patience is the answer.

Needless to say, animals will not be groomed, powdered, and well-attired. It is their raw appeal that makes them so beautiful. Features like large or dark eyes, vibrant colors, or the texture of their fur contribute to their appearance.

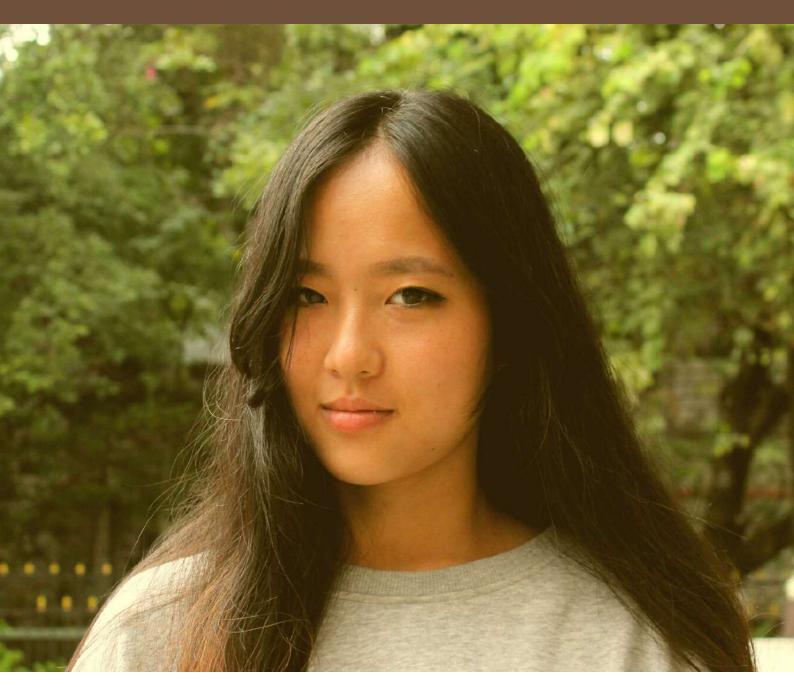

EYES

I think that one aspect of my life—the love of my parents—is overlooked. They were overjoyed when I was born and believed I was the greatest gift from God. They believed that I represented their life after them. They had hope when I was born. However, I believe that they should love me because it is in their nature to do so. But there are several people who don't have this privilege. But its always hard to tell because its well hidden behind their smile. An act of almsgiving would give hope on humanity. humanity exist through almsgiving.
